"TRIUMPH" ORE CONCENTRATORS

PRICE, $550, F. O. B.

PATENTED JULY 18th, 1882, OTHER PATENTS APPLIED FOR.

Awarded the Medal of Superiority at the Exposition at Denver, Colorado, 1884, in competition with the "Frue" Vanner, the "Embrey" Machine and the "Rouse" Tables.

The above improved form of the celebrated "Triumph" Ore Concentrator, possesses many advantages over any other style of Vanners, Vanning Machines or Concentrators, yet introduced to the notice of mining men. These advantages consist in the superior features which enter into their construction, and facilitate their operation. They are constructed in the best manner; their frames being made of iron, ensure their solidity, durability and perfect steadiness of motion when operated. They are built as compactly as their requisite strength will permit, weigh less, require less freight space in boxes, by which their cost of transportation is reduced, and occupy less mill room when set up. The Endless Belt is carried on a supplementary frame, which is mounted upon springs. The reciprocating movement which is imparted to this supplementary frame and belt, tends to settle and retain the sulphurets, and heavy and valuable metallic particles upon the belt, until they are discharged at the proper moment; this peculiar movement is of the utmost importance, and enables these machines to perform more work than any other Vanners or Concentrators yet devised.

The rolls supporting the belt are of galvanized metal, which will neither warp, crack, nor rust. The feeding mechanism is perfect, and permits the travel of the belt to be varied, at will, to any desired speed. The belts are of an improved form, and manufactured especially for this purpose of rubber, and are very durable. The arrangements for saving waste amalgam, escaping from the Batteries, are as complete as possible; and all of the parts of these machines are simple and effective in their operation.

Weight of machine, (boxed)	2,270 pounds.
Weight of belt, (included in above)	220 "
Weight of heaviest part of machine	80 "

For uniform and close concentration, the speed of the driving pulley of each machine should be adjusted and maintained at 235 revolutions per minute, or as nearly as possible. The power required for driving each machine has been carefully determined by an indicator to be less than one-half of one ($\frac{1}{2}$ of 1) horse-power. For circulars address

INTRODUCTORY.

DENVER DIRECTORY OFFICE, }
MARCH, 1885. }

Again we greet the public ; this time with the Thirteenth Annual Volume of the Denver City Directory, which has little in outward appearance to distinguish it from its predecessors, but a careful examination of its contents will reveal many changes since our last issue, such as annually occur in all important commercial centers. Many whose names formerly graced our pages have gone from our midst, and others have come to fill their places, while a few whose names have been recorded for many years, have been called away to "that undiscovered country from whose bourn no traveler returns."

Very few, if any, of those who find the Directory so useful, have any conception of the arduous task of collecting and arranging the matter intelligibly, and the amount of labor and constant care required to produce such a work—one from which the citizen or stranger, by referring to its pages, can readily find information of importance connected with the city.

There were numerous changes occurring almost daily after our canvass was completed which required much time and labor to correct, and which has caused more delay this year than usual ; however, this fact renders a Directory all the more desirable, and we feel that our patrons and the public will pardon the delay and appreciate an honest endeavor to make the work correct and reliable.

We wish to impress an important fact upon the minds of those consulting the Directory for information which they do not readily find, that all names are arranged in strict alphabetical order according to the manner in which they are spelled, and not as they are pronounced, therefore one should know the correct spelling of the name to be able to find it easily. For example, the name Stewart, Steuart and Stuart, although pronounced the same, are to be found on separate pages, and should the general public consider this suggestion, they will find less wanting both in the Directory and themselves.

We take this opportunity to return our sincere thanks to the merchants and citizens of the "Queen City" for the patronage and courtesies extended to us on this work, and again renew our promise to make each succeeding issue of the Denver City Directory more worthy of commendation and patronage.
